2020 JOHN HOWLAND AWARD RECIPIENT

Kathryn M. Edwards, MD, the Sarah H. Sell and Cornelius Vanderbilt Professor of Pediatrics at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, TN, has led many of the pivotal clinical trials of vaccines licensed in the past several decades and has played a major role in their implementation. She graduated from the University of Iowa College of Medicine and completed her pediatric residency and infectious disease fellowship at Northwestern University and her postdoctoral training in Immunology at Rush Medical School in Chicago, Illinois. Dr. Edwards joined the Vanderbilt Vaccine Program in 1980 and directed it for many years. She has served on multiple CDC, NIH, FDA, WHO, and IDSA committees. She was the Chair of the Vaccines and Related Biologic Products Advisory Committee of the FDA and has served on multiple vaccine safety and monitoring committees for industry and government. She directed the NIH-funded Vaccine Treatment and Evaluation Unit at Vanderbilt for many years.

In 2006, she received the IDSA Mentor Award for her exceptional mentoring and in 2014 received the Maureen Andrews Mentoring Award from the Society for Pediatric Research. In 2008 she was elected to the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences, in 2018 she was awarded the Maxwell Finland Award for Scientific Accomplishments, in 2019 she received the Frank Morriss Leadership Award in Pediatrics, and in 2020 she was awarded the Howland Award for her accomplishments in Pediatrics by the American Pediatric Society. She is currently active in assessing the safety and effectiveness of COVID vaccines and monoclonal antibodies and in mentoring the next generation of vaccine scientists.

2021 JOHN HOWLAND AWARD RECIPIENT

Sherin U. Devaskar, MD is Distinguished Professor of Pediatrics; Mattel Executive Endowed Chair of the Department of Pediatrics at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA; Physician-in-Chief, UCLA Mattel Children's Hospital; Assistant Vice Chancellor of Children's Health, UCLA Health; and Executive Director of the UCLA Children's Discovery and Innovation Institute.

Dr. Devaskar has dedicated her life towards unraveling mechanisms underlying the connections between the intra-uterine environment and postnatal origins of disorders in children and subsequently in adults. She has unraveled multiple molecular pathways ranging from epigenetics to function of key proteins involved. Most recently, she has employed -omics towards developing diagnostic strategies in pregnant women and infants, for the benefit of children. She received the Maureen Andrew Award for mentorship in 2008, served as the Program Chair for the Pediatric Academic Society in 2006-2007, and President of the American Pediatric Society in 2009-2010. She was the Editor-in-Chief for the Pediatric Research Journal from 2004-2010, and a member of the International Pediatric Research Foundation board 2010-2015. She was inducted into the National Academy of Medicine in 2012. In addition, her service includes being a member of the National Advisory Child Health and Human Development Council, Chair of the NIH Pregnancy and Neonatology Study Section, and the NICHD Maternal and Child Health Committee, and as a member of the NIH Human and Embryology Study Section, and member of the Neonatal-Perinatal sub-boards at the American Board of Pediatrics. Most recently, she served as the President of Association of Medical School Pediatric Department Chairs (AMSPDC) from 2019-2021 and currently serves as a member of the Public Policy committee representing AMSPDC. She continues to dedicate herself to science and its applicability to the health of children, with an eye on the future. She continues to mentor many in pursuing an investigative career or a career in Pediatrics along multiple trajectories.
