

APS MISSION

Shaping the future of academic pediatrics through engagement of distinguished child health leaders to represent the full diversity within the field.

WHO IS APS?

- 1800 recognized academic leaders in pediatrics.

Founded in 1888, the American Pediatric Society (APS) is the first and most prestigious academic pediatric organization in North America. The APS is dedicated to the advancement of child health through the promotion of pediatric research, recognition of achievement and cultivation of excellence through advocacy, scholarship, education and leadership development. Members of APS are recognized as academic leaders in pediatrics, and they continue to contribute to the overall progress of child health while inspiring the next generation of child health professionals.
