

Kyle Brothers, MD, PhD

Chief Scientific Officer

Norton Children's Research Institute (NCRI)

Affiliated with the University of Louisville School of Medicine

Kyle Brothers, MD, PhD, serves as Chief Scientific Officer for Norton Children's Research Institute in Louisville, Kentucky. He is a Professor of Pediatrics and the Endowed Chair for Pediatric Clinical and Translational Research at the University of Louisville, where he directs the Division of Pediatric Clinical and Translational Research. Dr. Brothers is a pediatrician and bioethicist who conducts research on ethical issues in the translation of genomic technologies to clinical practice. He serves on the National Advisory Council for Human Genome Research and its Genomics and Society Working Group. He is a practicing primary care pediatrician and serves as a clinical ethics consultant at Norton Children's Hospital in Louisville, Kentucky.