

Brian D. Johnston, MD, MPH

Professor of Pediatrics
University of Washington

Dr. Brian Johnston is professor of pediatrics at the University of Washington; adjunct professor of health systems and population health; associate medical director and chief of pediatrics at Harborview Medical Center. He studies implementation of evidence-based programs in real-world settings, including injury control and medical-legal partnership. He is also interested in research design, medical communication, and global applications of injury research.